

England's Cotswold Way Joins IAT

In November 2012, England's Cotswold Way National Trail joined the International Appalachian Trail as an important link between southern England and eastern Wales.

Photo 1

The 102 mile (164 km) trail of quintessentially English countryside follows the Cotswold escarpment.

Map

with its stunning views

Photo 2

and charming villages,

Photo 3

from the World Heritage City of Bath in the south to the beautiful Cotswold market town of Chipping Campden in the North.

Photo 4

Photo 5

The Cotswold Way National Trail passes through many picturesque villages and close to a significant number of historic sites, such as the Roman heritage at Bath,

Photo 6

the Neolithic burial chamber at Belas Knap,

Photo 7

Sudeley Castle near Winchcombe,

Photo 8

Hailes Abbey,

Photo 9

and many beautiful churches and historic houses. To learn more about the Cotswold Way National Trail, visit their website or take a walk along the escarpment!

Website

<http://iat-sia.com/index.php?mact=News,cntnt01,detail,0&cntnt01articleid=74&cntnt01returnid=15>